Tourist attractions

Welcome to exciting Singapore where you'll find plenty of things to do no matter your fancy. Singapore is an exciting city to explore on foot and here are some recommendations of interesting walks from the locals.

1. Chinatown street stalls (Chinatown MRT station, North East Line) are good for all kinds of souvenirs that are value for your money. It is also home to several places of worship for different religions such as Sri Mariamman Temple (oldest shrine in Singapore, Thian Hock Keng Temple (oldest Chinese temple), Jamae Mosque, Buddha Tooth Relic Temple and Museum. Check out two of the largest hawker centres (People's Park Food Centre and Chinatown Complex Market & Food Centre) for some delicious local fares.
2. Little India area (Little India MRT station) has an interesting history of cattle trading with roads and landmarks taking on bovine nomenclature, including Kandang Kerbau Hospital which literally means Buffalo Pen Hospital in the Malay language. Tekka Market and Hawker Centre is the largest wet market where locals shop for fresh tropical fruits and produce. It is also where some of the best dum briyani rice, roti prata and chendol dessert can be had. There are also plenty of restaurants where you can get yummy Northern Indian Food, Southern Indian Banana Rice Meals and everything in between. Wander over to nearby Kerbau Road to take in the disarmingly psychedelic historic house of Tan Teng Niah.

If you walk down Serangoon Road towards Farrer Park MRT station, you'll pass by Sri Veeramakaliamman Temple and if you're lucky enough to be there on an auspicious Hindu day, there will be throngs of devotees bringing offerings and prayers to the many deities inside. Near Farrer Park MRT, you will find 24-hour Mustafa Centre where they say if there's something that can't be found anywhere else in Singapore, you'll find it at Mustafa.

3. Arab Street, Haji Lane and Sultan's Mosque area is where cool hipster bars and cafes, little boutiques, arts and knick knack shops, co-exist with traditional textile shops, Malay Nasi Padang shops (where you can enjoy a nice cup of Teh Tarik with or without ginger), Middle Eastern restaurants and the historic Sultan's Palace (now the Malay Heritage Centre). Don't forget to look up for The Gateway (nearby skyscraper) designed by I.M. Pei that looks 2-dimensional from a certain angle on Arab Street.
4. Not to be missed is the night walk by the riverfront from Clark Quay, Boat Quay, to Marina Bay. If you are brave enough to try out the seafood restaurants at both Quays, do ask for the exact price of the seafood you selected and not the price per kg, or the final bill may shock you. Further along is the Cavenagh Bridge with its lovely sculptures, Asian Civilization Museum, the grand former Post Office (now the 5-star Fullerton Hotel), to the iconic Merlion statue at Marina Bay. Look out for the smaller Merlion cub statue made of ceramic tiles, and the secluded, less-visited Original Merlion Park (next to the historic Fullerton Waterboat house) that has lovely fig trees with draping aerial roots.
5. Nature parks and trails: Despite its big-city image, Singapore has many nature trails that is sure to satisfy the nature buffs.

- i) Botanical Gardens, a UNESCO Heritage site, is a pleasure to stroll through, especially the world-famous National Orchid Garden.
- ii) Southern Ridges Trail is a favourite of the locals. Start at Kent Ridge Park that passes by 3 nature parks, 2 canopy/treetop bridges, 2 impressive bridges across valleys and end at Mt Faber and down Marang Trail to Harbourfront MRT station. The 10 km trail takes between 2-4 hours. The trail can also be done in parts e.g. Start from Alexandra Arch on Alexandra Road to Mt Faber.
- iii) Labrador Park has access to rocky tidepools (check tides), a mangrove boardwalk and remnants of an old British military base. Across the straits on Sentosa Island is Fort Siloso which has an impressive museum showcasing life in the bunkers in World War 2.
- iv) Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve with meandering mangrove boardwalks is a fantastic place for birdwatching. You might even be lucky enough to catch sight of frolicking otters, walking fish and crocodiles. Watch out for the lumbering monitor lizards.
